PRESS RELEASE

Fast-growing SportAdmin – new Wihlborgs tenant in central Malmö

On 1 September, SportAdmin, which digitalises and automates administration for sports associations, is moving to 600 square metres at Sparven 15 on Drottninggatan in Malmö.

SportAdmin has 1,500 associations, including half of all the Allsvenskan football teams (Sweden's top tier football teams), as customers. The company has increased its turnover by an average of 50 per cent each year since 2016, doubled its personnel in three and a half years, and for three years in a row has been recognised with Dagens Industri's Gazelle company award.

The idea behind the company – to digitalise and automate the administration and accounting of associations – was conceived in 2005 by its founders Henrik Lehmann and Rikard Persson. They have been running the company full time since 2012 and now have 40 employees. Many of the staff are or have been participants in sports associations.

“When you walk into the office, you should feel like you're entering an environment filled with drive, community and a desire to make a difference. That's the exact feeling we experienced on seeing these premises for the first time. Perfectly located with an open floor plan and good flows for facilitating conversations and meetings, we are in a good position to continue developing digital solutions together with the Swedish sports movement,” says Henrik Lehmann, CEO of SportAdmin.

“We are pleased to be able to welcome SportAdmin to our technically well-equipped, modern premises in a building with a central location. Here, SportAdmin will be neighbouring other digital development companies, such as Fortnox and Avensia,” says Ulrika Hallengren, CEO of Wihlborgs.
